Foz do Iguassu/ Rio de Janeiro

Brazilian Breakfast Buffet at the hotel.
Brazilian side of the falls

From the Iguassu National Park main gate to the top of the trail leading to the falls - a 25km drive through pristine Atlantic Forest lush vegetation. The trail going down the Iguassu river canyon is pleasant as it opens, here and there, to the spectacle of more than 240 falls that form the horseshoe-shaped Iguassu Falls. Reaching the bottom, a lookout takes you to the edge with waters circling around. A glass elevator moves you slowly up the cliff face for an exquisite view at the upper deck. The water volume is staggering and when the waters are high - sheer emotion! Brazil shares Iguassu Falls with Argentina and on both sides a National park protects the rainforest that surrounds this marvel! UNESCO has declared Iguassu Falls and both parks a National Heritage Site of Brazil and Argentina!

Dinner at Fogo de Chão restaurant

Fogo de Chão is how the gaucho cowboys prepare their meal, digging a pit on the ground, lighting a wood fire, skewring the beef and placing it to slowly barbecue while cooking the carreteiro rice and boiling the water for the chimarrão. While waiting for the meat to barbecue, they would sit around the pit piping hot herb tea - "mate" (chimarrão). Fogo de Chão today brings to mind a chain of successful restaurants, 8 in Brazil and 17 in the United States, serving a selection of prime cuts of beef: shoulder and ancho among others that are a delight to meat connoisseurs. The additional attraction of this restaurant is a superb bay and Sugar Loaf view from its salon and veranda, a treat by itself!
